

Bergdoll, at Home on Trip, Makes Escape

was trapped at Wyntonfield and dragged from a window seat.

A brother, Erwin R. Bergdoll, widely known as an automobile racer, is still a fugitive from justice. He, too, failed to answer the draft call. He has been captured last year at his mother's home.

Two elder brothers have had their names changed by courts to escape the notoriety involved in the case.

Only yesterday Mrs. Bergdoll was convicted of resisting police with firearms in the course of the raid in which her son was captured five months ago. She was fined $279 and costs.

"Unforeseen Contingency"

It was said last night at Governor's Island that Bergdoll had gone to Philadelphia on a "confidential mission" at the instance of "competent authority."

His official business in Philadelphia would take him four or five days, it was estimated, when he left Governor's Island Thursday. Bergdoll's visit to his mother's home was described as an "unforeseen contingency."

There was no reason associated with his mission, it was said, which would take him to the home of his mother, nor did it occur to any one that he might go there.

Major Henry P. Hunt, commanding the disciplinary barracks, said: "An unforeseen circumstance caused a delay in Philadelphia. I cannot discuss the case further until I get an official report from the men who were guarding him. Every effort will be made to recapture him and return him to custody here."

Officials of the Eastern Department with headquarters at Governor's Island issued a statement that Bergdoll has not been in their jurisdiction since he was sentenced last March.

Mayo Loses His Fight Against Bigamy Warrant

The Appellate Division by unanimous vote refused yesterday to set aside the warrant on which Virginia St. Julian Mayo, wealthy New Haven radiator manufacturer, was arrested on March 2, 1919, on a charge of bigamy. The charge against Mayo is that he married Miss Wilhelmina Meyer in Kings County while he had another wife in Scranton, Pa.

Counsel for the manufacturer asked his release in habeas corpus proceedings on the ground that Mayo, who was arrested in New York County and held for trial here, should not have been arrested and held for trial in other than the county in which it is alleged the offense was committed.

The Appellate Division refused to entertain the argument that the arrest was illegal. Justice Laughlin said that any citizen was within his rights to arrest a person legally charged with crime in any place the latter was found. Miss Meyer sued Mayo for damages, charging that he deceived her into marrying him. She learned of his prior marriage when his wife in Scranton sued for a divorce. Miss Meyer received a verdict, but was unable to collect on the judgment.

Jamaica Saloonkeeper Robbed by Men "Demonstrating" Car

Benjamin Brown, proprietor of a saloon in Jamaica, Queens, was recovering yesterday at his home from an attack made upon him Wednesday night by two hold-up men of devious methods.

The pair stopped at his saloon with an automobile, and they had lost all their money at the races and offered to sell the car cheap. Brown insisted upon a demonstration and, strapping on a money belt containing $850, went for a ride. Near Glendale, the two men fell upon him with blackjacks, took his money, threw him out of the car and sped away.

Auditors Will Fight, Maze of Complications

Conflicting Statements Make It Uncertain Whether Widow Will Insist on Exhumation of the Body

Another Woman in Case

Notations by Hand in the Typewritten Testament Are Being Investigated

The case of Joseph Audiotore, the millionaire stevedore contractor, who died May 9 in the apartment of Miss Jennie Lebonsky, entered a maze of complications yesterday that presages a bitter contest over his property.

There were developments, however, to indicate that Mrs. Audiotore, the executrix of the estate, her newly retained counsel and one of the brothers of the deceased are satisfied with the evidence that her husband died from natural causes. These developments were: A six-hour conference in the office of John J. Keane, 44 Court Street, Brooklyn, was attended by Mrs. Audiotore, Mr. Keane, Frank Audiotore, brother of the dead man, and Charles L. Apfel and Joseph Phillips, executors of the estate.

Inquiry Not Desired

The statement by Mr. Apfel, following the conference that the evidence regarding the circumstances of Joseph Audiotore's death was conclusive and that he did not believe Mrs. Audiotore cared to have an investigation.

The announcement that henceforth Mr. Keane will speak and act for Mrs. Audiotore in all matters bearing on the legal controversy over her husband's property, and that Franklin Taylor, who has been acting as Mrs. Audiotore's counsel, has been so advised by Frank Audiotore.

Simultaneous statements were made which give a contradictory aspect to these developments. Briefly, this is as follows:

James Audiotore declared Franklin Taylor would contest the will for Mrs. Audiotore, the widow, to prevent Miss Lebonsky from sharing in the estate and to give the widow one-third and children two-thirds of the entire estate.

Mr. Taylor, who said he was engaged last Monday by Frank, Morris and James Audiotore, brothers of the dead man, on behalf of the widow, continued in the capacity of counsel and declared to reporters that he thought the circumstances of Mr. Audiotore's death "ought to be investigated."

He also cited portions of a letter written, he said, by Miss Lebonsky at the dictation of Joseph Audiotore to Joseph Phillips, one of the executors, and said that the dead man's will showed alterations in three different handwritings, with different pens and apparently made at different times.

Will Examined Closely

District Attorney Harry E. Lewis of Brooklyn told reporters that Mrs. Audiotore did not visit his office during the day to set forth her alleged reasons for suspecting that her husband had met death by violent means.

It is understood Mr. Lewis will appear in the Supreme Court next Monday and make application for an order to exhumate the body of Joseph Audiotore. The will of the body of Joseph Audiotore, if exhumed, will be found, prosecution alterations in three different handwritings, with different pens and apparently made at different times.

Three Aged Persons Die in Suicide Pact

Woman and Two Men Choose Death Rather Than Become Inmates of Home

Special Dispatch to The Tribune

CHICAGO, May 21.—Three elderly persons, inseparable companions during their last years, were found dead yesterday in a North Side apartment house. It is believed they planned death together, rather than spend their remaining days in an institution. Gas was found flowing from three open jets.

Mrs. Rose Cyr had been housekeeper for the others for fifteen years. She was seventy. The others were John Ascheck, sixty-two, an elevator operator, and Peter Brick, sixty, a book packer for a large publishing concern.

It is said Ascheck had been ill for some time and unable to work. It is believed Brick found the burden of providing for the others too great, and that they held a consultation and decided upon death. Papers were found in the flat which indicated that the victims were at one time all inmates of a home.

Won't Admit Confession

Milano, Condemned Slaver, Refuses to Discuss Story to Warden

OSSING, May 21.—Joseph Milano's confession that he fired the shot that killed Otto Flah, subway station agent in New York, and that Joseph Loefer, one of his three companions, did not even know they intended to rob the man, has not yet been put in writing above his signature. It was learned today, nor will he now admit, either to his prosecutor or to attorneys for his accomplices, having made such a statement.

The confession, which was made orally to Warden Lewis R. Lawes the day the four were to die, is believed to have had some influence in obtaining the "eleventh-hour" reprieve, which halted execution of the death sentence. It is said that Milano is contemplating another application for a new trial and does not want to injure his chances.

Bigamist Writes Life Story

"If Good Wife Is Rare Jewel, I'm a Collector," He Says

OSSING, May 21.—"They say a good wife is a rare jewel. I have been a collector of jewels," writes C. E. Wilson, notorious bigamist, who is serving a term in Sing Sing for marrying seven wives.

He has written an article for the May number of the Sing Sing Bulletin, the official organ of the prison. The article bears the title: "How I Came to Marry Seven Wives and Land in Prison." Wilson frankly admits his guilt and says he merits the punishment.

General Frank Taylor Dies

Veteran of Civil, Indian and Spanish-American Wars

SEATTLE, Wash., May 21.—Brigadier General Frank Taylor, U. S. A., retired, a veteran of the Civil, Indian and Spanish-American wars, died suddenly last night at the home of his daughter here.

General Taylor lived for many years in Montclair, N. J., and only recently came west. He was born in Calais, France, seventy-eight years ago, the son of English parents. At the outbreak of the Civil War he enlisted and served through every campaign of the war. He was promoted to brigadier general. He was retired from the army at his own request in 1905. During his long service General Taylor was known as a strict disciplinarian.
